Where The Power Is

“When we have our robes, we say that our ancestors are with us. These blankets, they’re powerful because they went through a lot of ceremonies and a lot of dances, a lot of potlatches, a lot of history. ... All the old blankets and regalia have a memory of these things. That’s where the power is – you feel it. You go to the museums and you open those drawers and you can feel it.” Dempsey Bob (Tahltan/Tlingit)

Join us for the Musqueam book launch of Where the Power Is co-authored by Jordan Wilson, Karen Duffek (MOA) and the late Bill McLennan. Over 80 Indigenous artists and knowledge keepers including Musqueam community members speak throughout the pages of this beautifully illustrated book about cultural belongings. Jordan and Karen will introduce the book and talk about the process of its creation.

Copies of the book will be available for purchase. Regularly $65 they will be available this evening for $40.

MOVEMBER

Movember supports Men's health initiatives, including prostate and colon cancer research, mental health and suicide prevention, parenting and general health. The term Movember is a combination of two words: November and Moustache. The concept of Movember originated by Australians as a fun experiment, and now is recognized globally each November.

PROSTATE CANCER: Prostate Cancer is the second most common cancer in men globally. Globally, more than 1.4 million men are diagnosed with prostate cancer each year. Know the facts and take action early.

EARLY DETECTION IS KEY.

HERE'S WHAT YOU NEED TO DO, AND WHEN.

When you're

50.

You need to have a conversation with your doctor about PSA testing.

If you have African or Caribbean decent, do it at

If you have a family history, do it at

Detecting Prostate Cancer Not everyone experiences symptoms of prostate cancer. Many times, signs of prostate cancer are first detected by the doctor during a routine check up. Some men, however, will experience changes in urinary or sexual function that might indicate presence of prostate cancer.

Signs and Symptoms may include:

- A need to urinate frequently, especially at night
- Difficulty starting urination or holding back urine
- Weak or interrupted flow of urine, or painful or burning urination

If you have any concerns, or notice any symptoms, book an appointment and have a discussion with your doctor

SAFE DRINKING WATER MONITORING PROGRAM

Charlene Campbell-Wood

Guidelines for Canadian Drinking Water Quality: Guideline Technical Document – Turbidity

Turbidity is a measure of the relative clarity or cloudiness of water. It is not a direct measure of suspended particles, but rather a general measure of the scattering and absorbing effect that suspended particles have on light.

This Guideline Technical Document reviews and assesses all identified health risks associated with turbidity in drinking water. It assesses new studies and approaches and takes into consideration the availability of appropriate treatment technology. From this review, several guidelines for turbidity in drinking water are established, depending on the source water type and treatment processes used for filtration.

Health effects

The types of suspended particles that are most frequently encountered in natural water are not considered to be significant chemical hazards. The most important health-related function of turbidity is its use as an indicator of the effectiveness of drinking water treatment processes, particularly filtration, in the removal of potential microbial pathogens. There is no precise relationship between the magnitude of turbidity reduction and the removal of pathogens. Turbidity reduction, particle removal and pathogen removal are each largely dependent upon the source water quality and the selection and operation of the treatment technology.

Turbidity also has different implications for water quality and treatment depending on the nature of the particles involved and the location of the turbidity within the drinking water system. High turbidity measurements or measurement fluctuations can indicate a decline in source water quality, inadequate water treatment or disturbances in the distribution system.

Job Opportunity

Position Title: Indigenous Youth Program Coordinator

Terms: 32 hrs/wk, full-time permanent

Start Date: January 2022

Salary: $38,000 - $40,000 ($23 - $24/hr)

Benefits: 4 weeks vacation | $500 Health Spending Account

Are you inspired by land-based education for Indigenous youth? Are you a confident youth facilitator? Do you have experience with plant medicines and land stewardship? We're looking for an Indigenous educator to lead land-based programs for Indigenous youth in East Vancouver, including designing lesson plans and sharing cultural and/or personal knowledge of harvesting and working with plant medicines and relationship to the land.

This position is open to people who identify as Indigenous. Please self-identify in your application.

Key responsibilities

- Plan and facilitate 10-week land-based programs for youth ages 14-18
- Design lesson plans and share cultural knowledge and/or personal experience with plant medicines (salves, teas), harvesting protocols, reciprocity with the land, and kinship with plants and animals
- Host Indigenous Elders and Knowledge Keepers from various nations
- Apply a trauma-informed and decolonial lens to program delivery
- Support and supervise Peer Mentors (youth volunteers)
- Support youth to fully attend and engage with the program
- Lead weekly social media posts for your programs
- Help with the recruitment of 8-10 youth participants per program
- Coordinate program logistics (materials purchase, scheduling guests, etc.)
- Manage program administrative tasks
- Support program evaluation: youth surveys, interviews, etc.
- Help to maintain EYA's native plant nursery and medicine gardens

Requirements

- 6 months experience planning and facilitating programs for youth
- Experience designing lesson plans and curriculum
- Experience with plant medicines, plant harvesting, and land stewardship practices
- Clear and open communication skills
- Able to work collaboratively with a small team
- Organized and a good problem solver
- Committed to doing your best work
- Flexible and willing to pitch in to make things happen
- Personal values fit with EYA mission and culture
- Satisfactory criminal record check, including vulnerable sector check

Assets

- Knowledge of trauma-informed practice
- Knowledge of local native plants and ecology
- Class 5 or 7 driver's licence or plans to obtain

About the organization

EYA engages youth facing barriers to become environmental stewards. We provide land-based education and paid job training programs that braid Western and Indigenous perspectives on land stewardship. Our work recognizes the intersection of social and environmental injustice. You'll be joining a collaborative team of caring, creative, fun, like-minded colleagues and an organization committed to decolonizing action. Find out more about our team and work: www.eya.ca

How to apply

E-mail a resume and cover letter to Emily Keller, Executive Director at jobs@eya.ca

The deadline to apply is November 22 or until filled. Applications will be reviewed upon submission and interviews will be scheduled on a rolling basis.

EYA operates on unceded xʷməθkʷəy̓əm (Musqueam), Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish), and səílwətaʔt (Tsleil-Waututh) territory.
